The times are strange and mysterious.

The Ayatollahs against the Holy Land.

Hamburg, 12.04.2024, 14:43 Time

USPA NEWS - After Israel's attack on the Islamic Republic's consulate in Damascus, Syria, which resulted in the killing of some IRGC commanders, a terrorist group that only seeks war, suppression, and brutality, and following that, the Islamic Republic in Iran began making repeated and direct threats, and the leaders of this dictatorial regime resorted to the worst kind of language, completely devoid of diplomacy and democracy.

They began installing some very provocative and inhumane banners in Tehran, demonstrating their enmity with humanity more seriously and intensely with each moment.

Amidst these tensions...

But are these ugly and provocative actions really necessary to such an extent that they have put all major countries in great concern?

In the latest speech by Ayatollah Khamenei, Leader of the Islamic Republic of violence mentioned a strange sentence on his speech.

The strangeness of this sentence on latest speech of Khamenei about 48 hours ago, many questions have occupied the minds of the Iranian people.

Has Khamenei, at the age of 80, after about 50 years in politics, just realized that the embassy of any country is the soil of that country???

Khamenei on Wednesday said:

The attack on Iran's consulate in Damascus by Israel is tantamount to an attack on Iran's soil.

It's strange; such words and sentences from someone who knows nothing about politics and democracy are very strange.

Several very important questions are on the minds of especially freedom-loving Iranians and opponents of the Islamic Republic, which they constantly ask themselves and others in Iran as well as Iranians outside the country.

The scenario is as follows: Is the attack on the United States embassy in Iran, Tehran on November 4, 1979, and the hostage-taking of American ambassadors at that time for 444 days in Iran not considered an attack and insult to US soil?

And as we flip through history and move forward, is the attack on the British embassy by individuals affiliated with the Islamic Republic on November 29, 2011, in Tehran not considered an attack on British soil?

At no time have any of these aggressions against embassies been condemned in Iran, not even by a single person!

This clearly indicates that Khamenei has supported, if not directly ordered, these attacks on embassies.

And on January 2, 2016, when these same individuals once again attacked the embassy of Saudi Arabia in Tehran, did Khamenei not know that these places in Iran are the embassies and soil of other countries?

What about people of Iran?

The people of Iran, both inside and outside the country, have strongly condemned the inhumane and terrifying actions of the Islamic Republic.

Perhaps this matter can be expressed as follows: The Islamic Republic may have everything for its sinister plans and aggressive wars and a possible attack in response to Israel, but it does not have the most important, firmest, best, and most valuable power: the will of the people of the land of Iran.

They have clearly chosen their own path and by no means accept any violence. The entire demand of the Iranian people is freedom and regime change.

It can be declared that no one would be happy about war, especially a people with a rich culture and a very beautiful historical relationship between Iranians and Israelis, which has made Iranians never demand even the slightest tension with Israel.

This fear of Ali Khamenei has increased more than ever, to the extent that he has decided to confront the people inside Iran as well. Khamenei is well aware that in the event of any potential war, the people of Iran will not support his dictatorial Islamic regime.

Instead, they might take to the streets and start the most important, history-making, and valuable protests, which could, through solidarity and unity, peacefully change the regime in Iran and overthrow a brutal and oppressive dictatorship.

We must remember that there are very big differences between the people of Iran and the ruling regime in Iran. The people of Iran have always proven that they have no resemblance to the authoritarian regime of this country, which is under the name of the Islamic Republic. In many cases, Iranians have demanded more sanctions against this regime, knowing that, despite all these sanctions, their currency's value is severely plummeting.

Yet, despite all the hardships, these people are peace-loving and unwilling to resort to violence. This red line for the people has been and still is, that they do not accept any violence.

That's why they have endured and endured any sanctions for many years, and even this could be felt in the recent protests in Iran in 2022 and 2023.

Despite the direct shootings by the inhumane and brutal regime of Khamenei, the Iranian people have been truly oppressed, killed, imprisoned, and suppressed.

Iranians want's Regime change , and nothing else.
and this change is to the benefit of all people worldwide.

These days, the people of Iran are very tired and hopeless intellectually and spiritually, it can be described as being extremely exhausted for a better understanding of the conditions of the people in Iran.

Imagine a country that is very underdeveloped but has a high history and a unique culture. There are very ancient historical sites, one of the most important of which is Pasargadae, the tomb of the king of Iran, Cyrus the Great, in this country. Every day when you wake up, you get poorer and poorer, and the value of your money plummets every day.

You see the most illiterate people at the top of the government, where the president of this country cannot even read a correct text from a piece of paper.

Air pollution is so high in the city you live in that perhaps you can only see the sky for a few days a year in the major cities of this country like Tehran, Isfahan, Ahvaz, Shiraz, and Mashhad, and on other days, you see a layer of air pollution in the sky.

The power of each passport drops more every day than yesterday and becomes one of the last passports in the world because of having an occupying government.

The respect and value of the people diminish internationally every day because the government of a country symbolizes that country, and Iranians really wish to see their men and women in the best condition once, like other countries.

They wish to see them with clean faces, without a beard, wearing suits and ties, and with at least a minimum knowledge of English.

But imagine these conditions getting worse every day for 45 years, to the point that there is no relationship between the people of this country and the rulers and the ruler of this country in terms of understanding, comprehension, and culture.

People in this country declare openly that the Ayatollahs are enemies of Iran and Iranians and the world, and they are occupiers. And imagine that whenever women go to the streets in this country, they really don't know if they will return home alive or, like the Iranian girl Mahsa Amini, they are unjustly arrested and end up being killed?

And whenever any kind of protest against these wrong internal and external policies of this dictatorial regime of the Ayatollahs has occurred, it has been completely peaceful and even in many pictures on days when the people of Iran protested in the streets, they strongly asked the soldiers of this regime for protection and gave them flowers and loved them. But the answer from this repressive force was brutal, brutal, and shooting bullets towards the Iranian people, and every protest left many young Iranians dead during the 45-year reign of the Ayatollahs in Iran.

Even imagining these things is difficult. But this is exactly the reality happening in the country of Iran.

And yet, the people of this country witness individuals who don't even speak the official language of Iran, Persian, and mostly converse in foreign languages such as Arabic, etc. and they are mostly belongs to Terrorist organizations, Like Terrorist of Hezbollah , Or Terrorist of Houthi , Members are in Iran.

Any how a few percentage of them is really Iranian.

Any how a few percentage of them is really Iranian.

But The biggest participants in support of the Ayatollahs regime in Iran are these foreign individuals in order to display a seemingly large support of Palestine or Any or any other government-sponsored in Iran.

This greatly pains the people of Iran as they are not even able to have an international news agency in their own country to present the truth to the world. The internet speed in Iran is extremely dreadful, and no social media operates freely in Iran; they are heavily controlled by the government, and publishing any real news from Iran can lead people to torture, imprisonment, and even death.

Therefore, they are unable to announce real news to all the countries of the world, and the respect for these people is severely damaged. But also, be assured that the day Iran is liberated from the rule of the Ayatollahs and occupiers, the people of Iran will strive to quickly regain their credibility and respect by explaining the facts to all the countries of the world and events that have happened to them, and by working positively and peacefully towards building a safer world.

This aspiration for the people of Iran is very serious.

Can it be declared that in the event of a potential war between the Ayatollahs and the Holy Land, it is in the interest of Iranians and the world?

NO,,,
absolutely not.

War is destruction, and no war has a good outcome.

It only guarantees devastation and the killing of non-combatants.

There are plenty of solutions for Iran and the Iranian people, but unfortunately, the Ayatollahs have been able to obscure the thoughts of people worldwide about Iran's situation due to their access to significant financial resources of the country.

This has led many countries not to support the people of Iran because they truly don't know what is happening inside Iran.

Many people in other countries might even think about how Iranians tolerate and endure this oppressive regime.

The answer is very clear: only through suppression and killing do they endure any protest.

Most of the suppressive forces in Iran are non-Iranians or, even if they are Iranians, they possess an extremely terrifying and extremist ideology.

Therefore, they easily kill people, and that's why the people of Iran are not able to engage in widespread protests and strikes because even the smallest protest in Iran leads to the sudden killing of workers in factories or offices and serious suppression. As a result, they are forced to return to their work, and this is the most tragic form of life.

There are many solutions to end this Islamic dictatorship.

Like not recognizing them officially and not continuing any negotiations by other countries.

Closing embassies and consulates and expelling ambassadors of the Islamic Republic from peace-loving and democratic countries.

Providing conditions for establishing an exile government for Iranians and negotiating to achieve a free country in Iran for peace and tranquility.

Disassociating the name of the Islamic Republic from Iran and recognizing Iran's name without the prefix of the Islamic Republic.

Not recognizing the flag of the authoritarian regime of Iran, which the people of Iran do not consider their flag, but rather their flag is the beautiful symbol of the lion and the sun.

Not engaging in any partnership or organization supported by the IRGC terrorists and permanently placing this group on the terrorist list.

Better understanding that groups like Hezbollah, Ansar Allah, Houthis in Yemen, and others are terrorist groups, and the Islamic Republic supports them, and these groups have a clear leader, who is Ayatollah Khamenei, and they receive arms and money from a common source, which is the terrorist group, the IRGC.

These are just very small solutions that can be implemented; otherwise, the Ayatollahs pose a severe danger to humanity and the planet Earth.

We must feel ayatollahs and their ideology is so much dangerous for all of us,

These days, the Ayatollahs have become so dangerous that they are discussed in international news all over the world, and their threats are talked about. This is not a good subject and will not be.

So we must seek to change the regime in Iran and stand with the people of Iran to witness a safe and peaceful Middle East without war.

It must be believed that the Ayatollahs are not a cancerous tumor; they profit from religious extremism, which can easily be declared as a dangerous and contagious virus.

Thank you for your precious time, hoping for a day when no child remains hungry in poverty, no parent is forced to describe war conditions to good children, and no one stays at home in fear of war, and we witness a world full of peace, kindness, love, eternity, and building a better earth for future generations.
